

A SALTON SEA FOR THE 21ST CENTURY: SCIENCE, REHABILITATION AND MANAGEMENT

MARCH 30-APRIL 1, 2005 ♦ HILTON SAN DIEGO MISSION VALLEY ♦ SAN DIEGO

SPONSORED BY:

USGS Salton Sea Science Office, San Diego State University Center for Inland Waters,
California Department of Water Resources and the Water Education Foundation

The Salton Sea is California's largest lake. It is the most biologically diverse salt lake in North America and the most important inland aquatic habitat for birds in the American Southwest. The Salton Sea is the focus of regional, state and national controversies concerning wildlife, water supply and population growth.

This multi-disciplinary, multi-format, 2-1/2 day symposium will feature the latest information on the Salton Sea's dynamic ecology. Its problems of water quality, biology, contaminants, hydrology, wildlife diseases and salinity management – and potential solutions – will be presented. This symposium will benefit anyone involved in research or management of salt lakes as scientists, engineers and managers present the latest research results from one of the world's best-studied salt lakes, and discuss its future.

Please register me: $100, general registration $150 after March 15 $25 students (no meals)
